As you wrestle with difficult decisions for next year's County budget, we urge the County Board to look for ways to continue the Circuit Court of Cook County Mortgage Foreclosure Mediation Program, an exemplary model for public/private partnerships that are key to the County's success. Any short-term savings from the proposed cut to this program will lead to far greater costs for the County from the thousands of unnecessary foreclosures that will result.

The Mortgage Foreclosure Mediation Program continues to help thousands of homeowners facing foreclosure and is critical to helping stabilize our communities. Eliminating the Program will cost Cook County much more than it would to fund the Program at the current reduced level.

Every time an unnecessary foreclosure is prevented, the overall savings for local government ranges from $25,000 to $44,000 per case based on conservative estimates from several studies around the country; these savings result from avoiding unpaid property taxes and erosion of the tax base, the cost to secure a vacant property, and other attendant costs. The costs are even higher when taking into account the impact on Cook County neighborhoods and communities. Foreclosure reduces the property values for neighboring homes and has a devastating effect on impacted neighborhoods and communities.

While the overall number of foreclosure filings is fortunately much lower since the peak of the foreclosure crisis, there remains a high level of demand for Program services. The Program continues to successfully assist many thousands of homeowners facing foreclosure, stabilizing our communities and making our court system more fair, accessible, and efficient for everyone.

Thank you for your longstanding support for this program, which has prevented tens of thousands of unnecessary foreclosures and made communities throughout the County safer and more stable for all County residents. While we recognize the difficult challenges ahead of you in finalizing the budget, we hope you can find a way to continue this successful program.

Thank you for your consideration.

Bob Glaves
Executive Director
