Summary: On 2/5/2013, the Cook County Board of Commissioners authorized a contract for detention reduction initiatives under the auspices of the Circuit Court of Cook County's Juvenile Probation and Court Services Department. The target population is court-involved minors who may be in jeopardy of an imminent referral to the Juvenile Temporary Detention Center due to non-compliance with court order/orders.

This continuum of community-based services is designed to keep at-risk minors in their homes and engaged in pro-social interventions in lieu of detention. The contract will provide a wide range of respite care, including educational, therapeutic and recreational programming, emergency shelter beds and expedited access to clinical services, which respond to the needs of the juveniles who are referred to participate in this program. The program curricula will be redesigned over time to incorporate additional services for referred minors.
