WHEREAS, Roger Pascal grew up in Rogers Park and graduated from Highland Park High School. He attended the University of Michigan and Harvard University School of Law; and

WHEREAS, Roger Pascal served as general counsel to the American Civil Liberties Union of Illinois for thirty years and as a partner at Schiff, Hardin LLP for fifty years; and

WHEREAS, Roger Pascal's legal legacy is lengthy and cannot be overstated. His work as legal counsel to the America Civil Liberties Union brought about profound and lasting reform that has expanded nationwide. One of his major victories was the decentralization of high-rise public housing in Chicago; his suit brought into use the Gautreaux process, now a national model for scattered site, low-density public housing. He successfully led the challenge to conditions at Illinois state psychiatric hospitals, and challenged the abusive and unlawful detention of a legal resident following the terrorist attacks of 911. His work challenging government watch lists and the repeated, lengthy, and abusive detentions of American citizens reentering the U.S made him nothing short of legendary; and

WHEREAS, Roger Pascal's commitment to justice, due process, and the future of the legal profession inspired his participation in numerous organizations. He served on the board of the Public Interest Law Initiative and the Schiff Hardin/Howard Area Community Center Legal Clinic, which he helped establish and where he served regular shifts for many years. He also regularly flew medical missions with LifeLine Pilots transporting patients to hospitals across the country; and

WHEREAS, Roger Pascal was a man with many distinct passions. He was a lover and supporter of jazz. He performed with his band the Rip Chords and served on the board of the Jazz Institute of Chicago.
