This grant project includes developing case studies for a number of demonstration pilot sites that can potentially host community solar arrays.

Primera Engineers, Ltd. will conduct a structural assessment of the rooftop or land parcel to determine the suitability for solar photovoltaic arrays, as well as a detailed financial analysis that includes solar photovoltaics system design, site preparation, installation, interconnection, operations and maintenance planning, as well as system generation output and existing load analysis for each proposed site. While the SMP grant cannot be used for installation, it is paying for financial modeling of possible community solar pilots, and analysis of regional impact if those pilots were scaled up and this type of project became widespread in the Chicago area. The information provided by this Technical Feasibility Analysis will become inputs to the larger SMP project.
